German explorers visit Port-au-Choix

BY SYLVIA PAYNE-GOULD

SPECIAL TO THE NORTHERN PEN

Harald and Silvia Paul arrived in Port-au-Choix last week, their second trip, but this time without their boat the "Gypsy Life".

When the 36-foot Gypsy Life entered Port-au-Choix harbour in July 2010, the Paul's were on their way to Nain, Labrador as part of an expedition from Germany.

Harald was working on his second book Freedom Adventure and his second movie "Adventure Kanada" which is not on the market with English Subtitles.

This is the third time that Harald and Silvia have crossed the North Atlantic Ocean in the Gypsy Life and they don't know if anyone has crossed in a small boat as many times as they have. Harald and Silvia feels that it's important to "keep free" and to live their own lifestyle.

They try to live off the land, they feel that its necessary for natures circle and its important if you want to conserve nature, they feel that nature don't need you but you need nature. So in their daily life they want to make people aware of the nature's circle.

Pass it on. The "Gypsy Life" is an economical vehicle to travel in from Germany to Canada but...the boat had to stay on dry dock in Goose Bay and now the explorers will experience life for the next 7 - 8 months on a motorcycle exploring Canada and hopefully the USA.
